

WorldOceanDay.org Resources for participants of CSLP's 2022 Oceans of Possibilities

WorldOceanDay.org enthusiastically partners with CSLP and the 2022 Oceans of Possibilities Summer Reading program to engage young people around the country (and world!) in ocean literacy and conservation activities throughout the summer - and 365 days of the year!

At WorldOceanDay.org, you can find additional resources, including:

- "Fun and Educational Materials for kids" blog post
- The Events Calendar and World Map where you can find additional events happening in-person locally or virtually in your communities and submit your own activities.
- We encourage everyone organizing activities for the CSLP program to list their activities on the WorldOceanDay.org site so you can reach more community members! Many people looking to celebrate World Ocean Day on the 8th of June and throughout the month of June (National Ocean Month) are seeking family-friendly and kid-friendly activities related to ocean literacy and conservation. Use this submission form and the sample event description below to help you easily submit your activities!
- TIPS:
 - You can also submit all activities individually to reach more people when they search for events by date and location. It's also possible to post multiple events that recur each week (e.g., Book Club every Tuesday at 1pm). Use this button:
 on the submission form (sample 1 and 2 below)
 - Posting just once with your full calendar of activities and a link to your website is a quick and easy way to publicize your efforts (sample 3 below!)
 - Here is a sample event posting from Gwinnett County Public Library in GA, a long-time World Ocean Day participant
 - For activities specific to World Ocean Day (8 June) we encourage you to use the free logos (and any of our resources!)
